DETAILED ACTION

Notice to Applicant

1. This communication is in response to the Amendment filed on 7/17/06. Claims 1, 5-7, 9, 13, 15-16, 20, 25 and 29 have been amended. Claims 1-30 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Greeven et al (2002/0143434) in view of Munoz et al (2002/0052760) and further in view of Allen (2003/0065626).

(A) Claims 1 and 16 have been amended to recite the limitation of : "a, transmitting", "from", "to a benefits management site", receiving the renewal request", "the", "management site", added by the benefits management site".

Greeven and Allen do not explicitly disclose that the method having : "a, transmitting", "from", "to a benefits management site", receiving the renewal request", "the", "management site", added by the benefits management site".

However, these features are known in the art, as evidenced by Allen. In particular, Allen suggests that the method having: "a, transmitting", "from", "to a benefits management site", receiving the renewal request", "the", "management site", added by the benefits management site" (See Allen, Page 2, Paragraph 0018).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have included the features of Allen within the collective teachings of Greeven and Munoz with the motivation of providing handheld devices in conducting health-related transactions that involve exchanges of electronic information across a network. Health professionals, such as physicians, medical staff, dentists, chiropractors, physical therapists, pharmacists, clinical trial specialists, biomedical researchers, health plan administrators, public officials, etc., may use handheld devices in performing their daily workflow (See Allen, Page 1, Paragraph 0002).

(B) Claim 5 –6, 13, 20, 29 have been amended to recite the limitation of "management site". However, this changes does not affect the scope and the breadth of these claims as they were originally presented, therefore these claims are rejected for the same reasons given in the previous Office Action, and incorporated herein.

(C) Claims 7 and 23 have been amended to recite the limitations of "management site" and "to the portable healthcare device". These limitations have been clearly shown in Page 2, Paragraph 0018 of Allen.

(D) Claim 9 has been amended to recite the limitations of: "a benefits management subsystem to receive a renewal request from a pharmacy site and to add prescription-related information to the renewal request; and a healthcare subsystem coupled with the benefits management subsystem via a network pathway, the healthcare subsystem comprising;”, “the”, “management site”, “the”.

Greeven and Allen do not explicitly disclose that the method having “a benefits management subsystem to receive a renewal request from a pharmacy site and to add prescription-related information to the renewal request; and a healthcare subsystem coupled with the benefits management subsystem via a network pathway, the healthcare subsystem comprising;”, “the”, “management site”, “the”.

However, these features are known in the art, as evidenced by Allen. In particular, Allen suggests that the method having a benefits management subsystem to receive a renewal request from a pharmacy site and to add prescription-related information to the renewal request; and a healthcare subsystem coupled with the benefits management subsystem via a network pathway, the healthcare subsystem comprising;”, “the”, “management site”, “the” (See Allen, Page 7, Paragraphs 0069-0070).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have included the features of Allen within the collective teachings of Greeven and Munoz with the motivation of providing handheld devices in conducting health-related transactions that involve exchanges of electronic information across a network. Health professionals, such as physicians, medical staff, dentists, chiropractors, physical therapists, pharmacists, clinical trial specialists, biomedical researchers, health plan administrators, public officials, etc., may use handheld devices in performing their daily workflow (See Allen, Page 1, Paragraph 0002).

(E) Claim 15 has amended to recite the limitations of “wherein the healthcare subsystem” and “includes”. However, this changes does not affect the scope and the breadth of these claims as they were originally presented, therefore these claims are rejected for the same reasons given in the previous Office Action, and incorporated herein.

(F) Claim 25 has been amended to recite the limitations of “transmitting”, “from”, “to”, “management site”, “receiving the renewal request from the benefits management site”, “added by”, “management site”, management site”, “a”, “to the portable healthcare device”, “the”.

Greeven and Allen do not explicitly disclose that the method having “transmitting”, “from”, “to”, “management site”, “receiving the renewal request from the benefits management site”, “added by”, “management site”, management site”, “a”, “to the portable healthcare device”, “the”.

However, these features are known in the art, as evidenced by Allen. In particular, Allen suggests that the method having “transmitting”, “from”, “to”, “management site”, “receiving the renewal request from the benefits management site”, “added by”, “management site”, management site”, “a”, “to the portable healthcare device”, “the” (See Allen, Page 2, Paragraph 0018).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have included the features of Allen within the collective teachings of Greeven and Munoz with the motivation of providing handheld devices in conducting health-related transactions that involve exchanges of electronic information across a network. Health professionals, such as physicians, medical staff, dentists, chiropractors, physical therapists, pharmacists, clinical trial specialists, biomedical researchers, health plan administrators, public officials, etc., may use handheld devices in performing their daily workflow (See Allen, Page 1, Paragraph 0002).

(G) Claims 2-4, 8, 10-12, 14, 17-19, 21-22, 24, 26-28 and 30 have not been amended are therefore rejected for the same reasons given in the previous Office Action, and incorporated herein.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed on 7/17/06 with respect to claims 1-30 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The cited but not the applied art teaches customer-centered pharmaceutical product and information distribution system (2003/0074234).
